Tasting note

Very pale in the glass, with soft citrus aromas and delicate floral notes. The palate is light, dry and juicy, combining racy acidity with a little roundness and texture. Fresh and elegant, it is an easy choice for an aperitif and has enough flavour to carry through a light meal.

The producer

Nekeas brings together local grape-growing families in Navarra's Valdizarbe valley. They revived the area's vineyards in the 1990s after decades of decline. Vines on steep slopes at 450–650 metres benefit from Atlantic and Mediterranean influences, helping the wines combine ripe fruit with freshness and balance.

Winemaking

Garnacha and Merlot are grown in sustainably farmed vineyards in the Nekeas Valley. Direct pressing extracts a delicate pink colour, followed by low-temperature fermentation in stainless steel to retain fresh fruit and aromatics. The wine is stabilised and aged briefly in tank before bottling, with no oak influence.

Food pairing

Grilled prawns, seafood paella, tomato and feta salad or light tapas.
