Tasting note

Lemon, white flowers and stone fruit meet fennel and a subtle almond note. Old vines give concentration, while lees ageing adds roundness and weight. Fresh acidity balances the generous texture, leading to a long, savoury finish.

The producer

Founded in 1935, Cuatro Rayas is a grower cooperative at the heart of Rueda. Its members tend a wide range of vineyard sites, including prized old Verdejo parcels. Viñedos Centenarios celebrates these mature vineyards and the depth of fruit they can produce.

Winemaking

Handpicked Verdejo comes from old bush vines on sandy and gravelly soils. Around 15% ferments in 500-litre French oak barrels, with the remainder in stainless steel. Ageing on fine lees with regular stirring builds texture while retaining freshness.

Food pairing

Grilled prawns, roast hake, seafood risotto or chicken in a light cream sauce.
